Green Spaces For All
Capital Roots provides 1,000 families the opportunity to grow their own organic food. This spring alone we’ve added hundreds of new gardeners to our program.

Fresh, Healthy Food
We collect and distribute more than 90,000 pounds of fresh produce to 10 community feeding partners around the Capital Region. In March 2020, we recovered and redistributed 250% more food compared to March 2019.

Helping Families
Through our food access programs we serve 275,000 constituents and their families per year. Our Markets from March to April have seen a nearly 100% increase in usage and sales.

Capital Roots' COVID-19 Response
Nourishing Communities At Risk. Providing Essential Services.

Protecting Our Roots
We have developed COVID safety protocols to ensure the health of our staff and customers. These changes limit the number of people coming in contact with each other and with food. We ensure the person handling money does not handle food, and keep physically distanced, all while providing compassionate customer service.

Sustainable Focus
We source foods from local farmers and food businesses ensuring that residents have access to top quality produce while strengthening the local economy during this critical time.

Food Safety, Delivered
The Veggie Mobiles sold $6,000 of produce in March 2020. EBT/SNAP transactions, up 20% from last year. We are delivering more than ever before to those who need it the most. We have extended Market hours to accommodate essential workers who may not be able to go to the store and developed call in, contact free pickup.
